Message from the MD

Dear Team,

It's heartening to note that we have some energetic people in our workforce who rightly believe that sporting activities within the Company foster team cohesion and harmony between the participants. So when the idea of organizing Ramzan cricket tournament surfaced, after quite a hiatus, I not just whole heartedly supported it but being someone who pursues cricket committedly when I am little less preoccupied with official work, I decided to be a part of the Festival by being a member of one of the teams.

The organizers did an excellent job of arranging matches during one of the weekends in Ramzan, with teams starting after Iftar and competing till Sehri, under KT floodlights. We all must work dedicatedly in our offices yet sometimes it pays to take a much-needed break by indulging in sporting activities. This way we will not get burnt-out, besides staying fit and healthy.

All the very best,

Imran Maniar

How to improve Work-Life Balance

By Shakil Rashid, Manager, Finance, SSGC

In today's busy world, it is getting very difficult to have an ideal work-life balance in one's life, but its importance cannot be ignored. Very often work suddenly takes preference over every other thing in our lives due to our passion to succeed professionally, in such a way that we push our own well-being to set aside. Having a smooth work-life balance or work-life cohesion is essential for not only enhancing our emotional, physical and mental health, but also for our career to grow further.

Common Factors:

Common factors leading to poor work-life balance can be increased workload at work, prolonged working hours, huge quantum of responsibilities within family life.

Actionable Remedies:

So here are some of the ways on how to improve work-life balance: First of all one needs to accept that there is no such thing like perfect work-life balance in the real world. Hence we must strive to achieve the best possible work-life balance with a realistic. Secondly, we should prioritize our emotional, physical and mental health above all things. If one is struggling with stress or anxiety, therapy sessions can help a person perform better later.

Also if one has any chronic or prolonged illness he or she should focus on treating it even at the cost of having some off days to save oneself from extended off days in the future.

Thirdly, one should also not be afraid to unplug oneself from the outside world i.e. by taking sometime out of daily official routine during the week, like having a meditation-in-transit or reading a quality book during daily commuting to work instead of checking work e-mails, or reading any good book.

Fourth, in order to recharge oneself emotionally and physically one can also go on vacations and in the process spend quality time with loved ones away from work pressures. Fifth, whatever one is doing to earn his living, he should love his work and have a sense of achievement while performing his duties so that he is fully motivated and not half-hearted after working hours to have ideal work life balance.

Work is important but work is not everything to achieve in one's life. One should plan his personal time as well.
